Muzzling reflects 'no-win' attitude

Senator Strom Thurmond said today that the State Department's muzzling of the military is a direct reflection of our "no-win" attitude in the cold war

The South Carolina Senator said that "the basic ingredients of this 'no-win' policy are Fear and Naivete. Our policy makers are paralyzed with fear of the destructive power of nuclear war. They have allowed this fear . to magnify out of proportion the danger that such weapons will be resorted to by the Communists"

No one wants to admit that his plans are based on fear of naivete and have no hope of success Therefore, our policy makers have duped themselves into thinking that the Communists will change or evolve. Well, the Communists have not changed" their ambitions and efforts are still to dominate and enslave the people of the world" But while we have been waiting for them to 'evolve' they have," ..., become a nuclear power, and exploded a 58-megation bomb; they have leapfrogged our missile program and developed rocket engines with great thrust and missiles with advanced guidance systems; they have brought under their domination about 16 countries and 900 million people"

Meanwhile, "in order to speak with one voice" our State Department has censored the public statements of our military leaders These are the men who best understand the Communists and their militarily aggressive nature

In summary, Senator Thurmond said: "Instead of military and ultimately mass muzzling, instead of a 'no-win' foreign policy in which we try to kill the Communists with kindness, we must have a get-tough policy for America .... People across this great land are demanding a 'win' policy for the cold war Our people, our freedom, our traditions, our national honor, and our survival as a nation make victory in the cold war an absolute necessity"

Farm Bureau's plan a 'bridge'

On The Farm Front
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)

United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Charles B Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation describes his group s cropland retirement plan as 'a bridge between where we are and where we want to go"

"It is a temporary bridge (for farmers) to change direction, to shift gears," the Farm Bureau president told a news conference Wednesday

The cropland retirement bill calls for voluntary land retirement for which farmers would receive payments, and lowered price supports on surplus items It is in direct opposition to the administration farm proposals which call for mandatory land retirement and higher price supports Shuman said the bureau plan would offer no incentive for the farmer to pour on fertilizer and over-produce in an effort to keep up his income

The administration claims the bureau plan would cost more than the administration plan and would cost farmers a billion dollars a year in income Shuman said the bureau plan would cost money, 'but I'm sure less than that anticipated by the administration" He said cost estimates presented by the administration "are political figures out of the front office" He said the administration plan would be permanent whereas the bureau plan would be temporary

Shuman ruled out the possibility of a compromise between the farm policy views of the administration and the bureau. He said the administration and the bureau are going in opposite directions – the administration toward a rigidly controlled agriculture and the bureau toward a market price system

Shuman said if the administration will take one positive step toward a market price system, then compromise is possible" He said the administration establishes artificial prices whereas the bureau wants the price at the market place to prevail.

Shuman said the bureau is "strongly opposed" to a mandatory feed grain program, and would oppose an extension of the present program if the administration omnibus farm bill bogs down in Congress

Cash receipts from farm marketings during January and February totaled about the same as a year earlier

Both prices received by farmers and the volume of marketings averaged about the same as for the first two months of 1961, the department said in a review of the general agricultural situation

Livestock product receipts equaled the year - ago total as a 2 per cent decline in prices was offset by a rise in marketings Prices received by farmers for hogs, lambs, milk broilers, eggs and turkeys during January and February averaged lower than for the same months of 1961 Cattle prices averaged the same

Receipts from crop marketings were close to the total for January - February of last year Prices received averaged nearly 3 per cent higher than a year earlier but marketings were down about the same amount Wheat, cotton, and commercial vegetable prices were major items showing price gains from a year ago Market prices of corn, soybeans potatoes and fresh fruits averaged below year-ago levels

The current report of the 1961-62 blow season in the Great Plains shows 818 420 acres of land damaged so far this season The blow season runs from Nov 1 through May 31

HIKE SCHOOL AID

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee has approved President Kennedy s request to increase by $16 1 million the amount in loans available to freshman students under the National Defense Education Act

The committee agreed to hike the total immediately so that the loans would be available this year

It was a long old drive through rain and over a very poor No 136 to Oxford last week, but it was well worth it when the Jaycee state president said Harold Lowrey from Nebraska City was one of the three top young farmers in Nebraska

Our family left Nebraska City at 1 p m , stopped at the mother-in-law's home for a few minutes and arrived in Oxford at 6 p.m The return trip was more enjoyable because we weren't watching the time As a result we stopped back at the mother-in-law's home again to pick up the kids (a few brief hours before sunrise) ate some fried chicken and arrived home at 7 a.m

The award presented to the Nebraska City man before 400 persons at the banquet is one of the most coveted offered by the Jaycees. It means simply that the man — young though he may be— is No 1 in the farming industry 35 years of age and under.

Air show crash kills RAF pilot

ADEN (UPI) — A Royal Air Force jet fighter, taking part in an air show attended by British Defense Minister Harold Watkinson, crashed into a parade grounds and exploded Friday, killing the pilot and injuring 13 persons

Four men, five women and four children were seriously hurt when the jet went into a nose-dive and plunged down on the Khormaksar airfield

Watkinson had come here to attend British forces week, which ended Friday with the air show.

Nebraska Life Lines!

FROM THE VERY BEGINNING, roads were built to further commerce and trade, and down through the centuries the first requirement whenever a new territory was to be settled has been to build roads.

Nebraska has thousands of miles of roads and streets, most of which are surfaced and in good condition. These are Nebraska's life lines, without which the State could not exist.

For over these highways farm produce goes to market, raw materials and parts get to factories, finished products reach the consumer. Yes, over these roads children get to school, fire-fighting equipment responds to emergencies, the moving of household furnishings takes place.

If you've got it, a truck brought it!

is the only candidate for the School Board who was born and raised in Nebraska City –graduated in 1907 from the Nebraska City High School and 4 years later graduated from the College of Engineering at the University of Nebraska. Our 6 children and one nephew, whom we raised, also graduated from the Nebraska City High School. I have been in the hardware business on Main Street for 44 years.

If elected to the Board, I will work to keep the Junior and Senior High Schools at the present location. I also favor building up to 6 grades on the present Greggsport site.

I believe there are many ways to economize in the operation of our schools and still maintain a high standard of education. I would make a thorough investigation looking for areas where greater economy might be practiced.

I feel it hard to believe that any one loves children more than I do—our own as well as yours. For this reason alone I want the best in education for everybody's children, and I want the taxpayers to get the most for the money they pay for this education.

Our elected public officials must stop wasting the people's money and commence to spend it wisely if we ever expect to get any tax relief. We ought to set a good example for the younger generation, many of whom are becoming disciples of conservatism. Why shouldn't they object to us piling up huge and unnecessary debts for them to pay off.

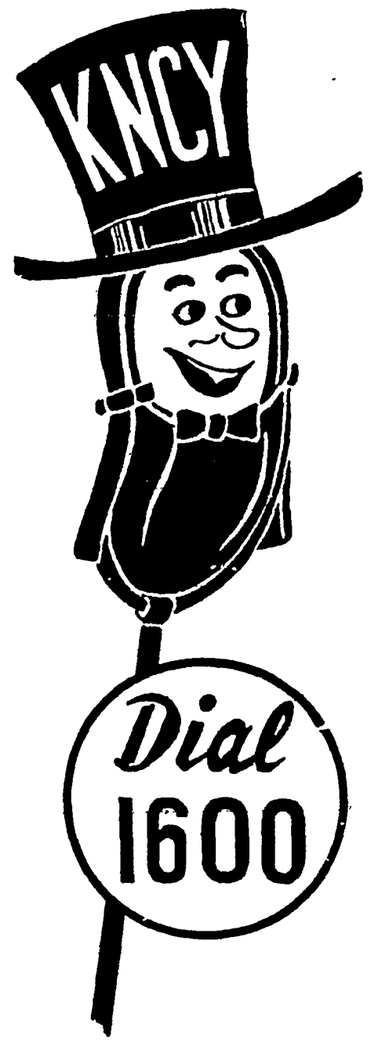

We are all justly proud of our dedicated teachers, and the students in their classes who have made and continue to make enviable records while in school and in their careers after leaving our schools.

I PLEDGE MY BEST EFFORTS TO PROVIDE WHATEVER FACILITIES ARE NEEDED AND REQUIRED TO GIVE ALL OUR CHILDREN A GOOD EDUCATION WHILE AT THE SAME TIME, I WILL GUARD THE TAXPAYERS INTEREST TO SEE THAT NO MONEY IS SPENT UNWISELY.

GEORGE BISCHOF.
