The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

The multitude of them that believe were of one heart and of one soul. (Acts 4:32.)

PRAYER: Our Father, as we go forth today to our work, use us to help Thee build Thy kingdom. Through us may Thy name be known and Thy kingdom recognized. Help us see that Thy kingdom is everlasting and that whosoever will may enter it In Christ's name. Amen.

HE VOTED FOR IT

SENATOR BILL Brandt of our legislative district voted for the proposal to permit publication of the votes of Unicameral members who are in committee.

The measure did not pass since only 14 voted for it, 26 against and three did not show their hands.

The Lincoln Journal's recent compilation of senatorial votes on important, controversial questions showed the Otoe-Cass senator as registering disapproval of the measure.

The New-Press is glad to make amends and to inform Senator Bill's constituents that, as he says in a letter to me, "I have always felt that the activities of the State Senators should be subject to the minutest public scrutiny. It is, I think, one of the safeguards in our Senate and as such should be improved by not allowing individual senators to hide behind a committee statement."

GREY AND RED-LEGGED

MEL Steen, the controversial, energetic and resourceful head of Game, Forestation and Parks Commission, will go free to Europe as a member of the "Nebraskaland Party" headed by Mrs. Morrison. Among the members of the party there is an Indian Chief, too. He was pictured the other day in full panoply of his tribe, Pomp and Circumstance as it were.

Steen will go at public expense. The cost will be $1,660. Governor Morrison says he authorized the expenditure because the Game Commission now is responsible for tourism insofar as Nebraska is concerned and Governor Frank "feels the State will benefit from this activity."

The voucher authorizing the $1,660 travel expense bill says the purpose of the trip is "to sell Nebraska, promote tourism and arrange with European game officials for breeding stock in grey partridge and red-legged partridge."

Probably you've never known much about grey or red-legged partridges, you hunters. Do not confuse them with grey squirrels which abound in the Rocky Mountain areas, or the red-chested whimmy-whammy which, I've heard, has its habitat in Afghanistan.

If one might hazard a guess, Nebraskans who perenially criticize Mel Steen will be writing letters to the newspapers. It should be interesting to read 'em.

By the way, if you have a yen to make the trip, there still is room on the roster. But don't expect the state to pay your travel expenses.

AFTER 40—WHAT?

ANY woman who catches a husband at age 40, which is a risk to begin with, and doesn't work at showing him he got the cream of the crop is the luckiest man in the world, is not worth the salt he has on the table.

That is not my statement although it looks pretty good from this distance. The opinion was expressed by a man who originated in Europe. Let's listen to what else he says:

"Somehow sadness strikes me when I see that, unlike your European sister, the older you get the less you learn. Too often do I pick up the paper and read that you married happily at 40 and regret bitterly at 41.

"The way to keep the rough edges smooth around your late marriage, consider these factors and put them into practice: attitude, light and time.

"Attitude is what you wake up with in the morning. Forget about yesterday and don't worry about tomorow. They put lines in your face and you can't afford any more.

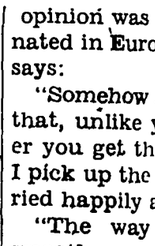

"Lights are important after 40. Never have in your home any light that is not completely shaded. Bulbs of brightness show up every line and blemish.

"Time? Spend more of it on yourself night and morning. Cosmetics and dress It's a full-time job"

So says the gent from abroad. Shaded lights? They are hard on the old man's eyes and if he's smart he'll set up a howl that can be heard for a mile if every lamp is hidden. As for cosmetics and dress Every woman spends most of her time thinking of them. If she married a tightwad, then what?

Perhaps the best solution is to forget that marriage thing after 40. A woman unincumbered at that age ought to be as happy as a bug in a rug. As for the man past 40 who gets into the matrimonial net, you couldn't revamp and remodel him if you tried for a whole year of Sundays!

Finding the Way Treasure Our Tomorrows

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"CIVILIZATION BEGINS WHEN THE FIRST tree is cut and ends when the last tree is felled." The speaker was the director of forestry in Switzerland, a learned and internationally renowned student. He was looking at the bleak and rocky mountains of a treeless landscape in Greece After the lush plains of olive trees and the green beauty of the cypress which punctuated the scenery with sharp precision, the harsh, rocky countryside of these provinces was a shock.

THE NIGHT previously another distinguished international leader had chatted with me One of Athens' learned jurists, he had just addressed an international assembly of lawyers. He told of his efforts to discover a common body of law which might have international authority as it is derived from the decisions and experience of the United Nations.

These two statements have especial meaning as one sees both the remains of an ancient culture and the hard work of a people trying to wrest a living from this rocky soil.

MY FORESTER friend is certain that at some time the ancestors of this diligent people wasted their trees—my jurist friend is afraid that we will all waste the resources of our present experience, eroding our own values.

PERHAPS the finest value of travel is not in seeing oceans, trees and mountains but seeing these in relation to our own convictions. One can be angry at another people in another generation. There is now the need to look at our own stewardship.

We have sailed past fishing villages where meat is a luxury, enjoyed at Christmas and Easter. We have watched men and women loading sheaves of wheat on a donkey until only his ears and feet are visible.

WE HAVE a new appreciation of the Scriptural references to "shade" and "shadow," for the temperature in the sun reached 104 degrees, and under the nearby tree it is a "cool" 80 degrees.

We have seen the glories of art and architecture, have watched this stubborn people who have withstood war after war, and have observed the witness of today in a bustling city with its new Hilton and its statue of Harry Truman.

MOST OF all, we are aware that the glories of the past are only an asset when tradition is a push to the present.

We can cut all the trees and make the future barren. We can miss the meaning of the present experience and impoverish tomorrow.

Game season to be set Monday

LINCOLN (UPI)—The Nebraska Game Commission will set Nebraska seasons on pheasants, quail, grouse and other species excepting waterfowl and big game Monday.

The length of seasons and size of limits will be based largely upon studies and recommendations made by the commission's technicians.

In 1962, Nebraska enjoyed the nation's longest pheasant season —Oct. 27 through Jan. 20. Other season dates were Oct. 27-Dec. 25 for quail in the major range, Oct. 6-28 on grouse, Oct. 20 - Nov. 13 on ducks, Oct. 1-Dec. 14 on geese, and Sept. 1-Jan. 15 on squirrels.

The Central Flyway Council, of which Nebraska is a member, recently recommended a 40 - day duck season with daily limit of four and possession limit of eight. An optional 60-day season with three and six limits was also offered.

"RESISTANCE" TO POISON IVY

Q. Are some people naturally resistant to poison ivy?

A. Yes, people born in the Orient are much less likely to be bothered by poison ivy and poison oak than people born in this part of the world.

SHAVING AND HAIR GROWTH

Q. For a girl I have too much hair on my thighs. It's embarrassing when I wear shorts or a swim suit. Will shaving cause the hair to grow back thicker than ever?

A. No. Shaving does not stimulate hair growth. If this were true, soon-to-be-bald men could prevent baldness by simply shaving the head a few times.

CANKER SORES

Q. What causes canker sores?

A. The exact cause isn't known. These bean-size, crater-type mouth ulcers are very painful and often form without any apparent reason. Ordinary canker sores heal within a reasonable time. Mouth sores that drag on should be examined by a physician or dentist.
