Terry was abused because of switch

SCOTTSBLUFF (UPI)—State Sen. Terry Carpenter said Friday Gov. Frank B. Morrison and his son, Frank Jr., leveled "abuse" on him in the 11th hour of the recently completed senatorial campaign.

He referred to the statement by the younger Morrison on Omaha and Lincoln television on the eve of the election that Carpenter decided to campaign against the governor after the latter refused to recommend the senator for an appointment to the Federal Power Commission.

The governor was the Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate. He was defeated by Republican incumbent Carl Curtis in Tuesday's balloting.

Carpenter, a veteran lawmaker, said Morrison "distorted" the circumstances surrounding his (Carpenter's) request for a federal post.

Approached Morrison

He said he approached the governor about nine months ago, expressing an interest in a federal job—"something along the line of the Power Commission, Civil Aeronautics Board or Federal Communications Commission."

At that time, he added, Morrison advised him that he would talk the matter over with the Democratic National Committee and contact Carpenter later.

"About six months ago, the governor called me into his office and said, 'Carpenter, I need you to win this election. I need you to be my hatchet man....to cut this Curtis down to size.' "

However, Carpenter said Morrison said the Democratic National Committee would not provide a federal post until after the election and then only if Morrison won.

Cost $25,000

Carpenter said he advised the governor it would cost about $25,000 for radio and television time if he was to campaign against Curtis.

"The governor never got in touch with me after that. He said during his campaign that he made no deals. After I read that, I made up my mind to support Senator Curtis," the legislator said.

"Then, at the 11th hour of the campaign, the governor and his son came out with this abuse—with no opportunity to reply before the election. Well, I've got my say now."

COOK
Mrs. George Fisher

VISITS OLD HOME — Mr and Mrs Merle Fisher and Mrs Edith Fisher were Sunday guests of Mr John Reed in Nebraska City. Mrs Fisher's nephew and niece, Mr and Mrs Stanley Richards, took them on a tour in the afternoon. One of the places visited was the old family home of Mrs Edith Fisher's parents, Mr and Mrs E. G. Copes, where they lived until she was 13 years old. Mrs Fisher celebrated her 87th birthday on October 30. She had not seen the old home since leaving there 74 years ago. They also stopped at the District 74 school which she attended. This brought back the memory of the 1888 blizzard when her older brother had to come to school for her and another brother and covered them over with blankets to get them in the wagon.

Attending the Veterans Day dinner in Tecumseh Sunday from Cook were Mr and Mrs Douglas Brown, Mr and Mrs Roy Chamberlain, Mr and Mrs Ed Sillman and Mr and Mrs Ivy Cloyd.

Voters in Cook Tuesday totaled 273, which was a much larger turnout then was anticipated Mrs Fisher reported.

Mrs Gladys Brewer of Sterling, Colo., has returned home after spending a week with Mr and Mrs Ray Mannschreck at Cook and with Mr and Mrs Alvin Finke and Mrs Mary Gerking at Syracuse. Mrs Gerking has been dismissed from the Syracuse Community Memorial hospital and has been staying with her son-in-law and daughter, the Alvin Finkes.

Soldiers die in contact with mine

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — Three Israeli soldiers were killed today by an exploding mine as they patrolled a lonely stretch near the danger-ridden Jordanian border.

Six others were wounded in the attack, latest in a series of terrorist outbreaks along Israel's borders with her Arab neighbors.

Civic council meeting Monday

The Nebraska City Improvement Council will elect officers at a meeting Monday at 7 a.m., at Hotel Grand.

Harold Rowe, co-chairman with Gladys Wenzel, said officers to be elected are chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer.

Rowe said the program has been successful enough that permanent officers should be named to get present programs under way on a permanent basis.

Rowe and Miss Wenzel were named organizational chairman at the formulation of the Improvement Council.

Rowe revealed that Nebraska City has been selected as one of four towns in the state which will be studied by the state Department of Resources in a community attitude survey.

Rowe said Nebraska Citians should be proud that their town was chosen for the Centennial year survey.

Two injured in one-car accident

Stephanie S. Smith, 16, 1316 Fourth Corso and Cindy Ford, 16, 1218 Fifth Avenue, were treated at St. Mary's hospital early Saturday for injuries sustained when their car went off the street and upset in an orchard

Miss Smith told police she struck loose gravel and lost control. The car went off the street on the west side and upset at 12:05 a.m., on Fifth Street between Eleventh and Twelfth Avenues.

Miss Smith sustained cuts on her knees and Miss Ford sustained a cut on her left leg and neck injuries.

$230,000 bond sale is Tuesday night

The Nebraska City school district will open bids Tuesday on the sale of $230,000 in school bonds.

Big opening will be at 7:30 p.m., at Superintendent Sam Metcalf's office in the basement of Greggsport school.

Voters approved the issuance of bonds at a special election October 11. The money will be used to complete the double-unit grade school, rebuild Hayward park and install hot lunch facilities at Junior High.

From this chair, the property acquisition south of Nebraska City by Omaha Public Power District seems dramatic and wonderful.

I don't know what's going on. Mebbe OPPD doesn't either.

BUT, whatever the projected plans for power facilities along the Ole' Muddy, you can bet your best pair of boots, Nebraska City will benefit.

The best part of the election night party was a real night — all of it — with the boys and the wives didn't fuss one bit.

Ed Harshbarger, the WWII tank driver who now wheels calculators in his county clerk office, began to wonder about 3 a.m., what had happened at Syracuse.

The two precincts were later than expected even with the long ballot.

The best way, Ed figured, since he was unable to call the polling place, was to call the home of an election worker to see if the job was done.

I'd like to have seen B. A. Johnson's face, when he crawled out of bed at 3 a.m., to hear Ed bark over the phone:

"Is your wife home yet?"

Ed never did tell the rest of us sitting around the desk of B. A.'s reply.

There's going to be a pretty foxy improvement in school facilities when the new double-unit grade school is completed.

The new school will be unique: No windows, pie-shaped rooms and carpeting.

Best part may be the training in which Mom and Dad will benefit about junior wiping off his shoes before he sloshes through the house.

To Harold Fouts

Dear Friend:

We miss seeing you on the main drag. We have not forgotten and are keeping a record of the money you owe Hested's for the coffee you bought your friends.

Ev, over at the Chamber office, still can't figure out your filing system and needs a copy of that letter you wrote to Arvilla Crackerby in Moosemouth, Ark., about locating a skunk descenting facility on Central Avenue

Miss Crackerby was serious!

2,000 return to their homes

By SAM MARTINO
United Press International

HOMER, Mich. (UPI) —Some 2,000 townspeople, thankful for quick-acting firemen and an assist from nature, were back home today, breathing easier after a deadly gas scare drove them out of town.

The action of the firemen and a cold wind were credited with averting a major disaster which arose Friday when 24 cars of a freight train jackknifed into four oil and gasoline storage tanks, touched off a blaze that raged for seven hours, and created a danger of leaking gas fumes.

The wreckage of the cars still smoldered as firemen kept a wary eye on two tank cars containing a chemical that when heated produces a deadly gas used during World War I.

Firemen poured water on the tank cars containing vinyl chloride to keep phosgene from forming in the intense heat. Miraculously, there were no injuries.
